comical depiction of two friends looking for an orientation in a world which to them has lost its orders and values by using Rosencrantz and Guildenstern who are the two courtiers from Elsinore from Shakespeare's Hamlet. Stoppard shows an unknown perspective of Hamlet. It is the one of Rosencrantz and Guildenstern without knowing the entire plot they experience the action from their point of view and constantly try to find explanations of their roles and future in the play. The lack of orientation and the absence of reliable values in this strange world remind the audience of the contemporary pluralistic society and its problems even though the matter is serious. Stoppard manages to establish a comical atmosphere which includes a certain self-critique as self-control to prevent Rosencrantz and Guildenstern from becoming in any way idealistic or instructive. To show this I will analyse the play from a post-modern perspective and thereby focus on the metadramatic features which make up for the self-control of the play. At first I will describe the plot and setting of the play. Secondly I will define postmodernism and metadrama for an analysis of the play in the context of metadrama. Some textual allusions to Shakespeare's Hamlet and Beckett's Waiting for Godot will be described.
